The bill for making Crater lake and vicinity a national park has passed both houses of congress.

President Roosevelt has recommended to congress that an appropriation of $500,000 be made for the relief of the Martinique sufferers.

Young boys with guns have been making themselves a nuisance in some portions of the town. They shoot at birds with the utmost recklessness of the direction of their aim so that the whistle of little bullets is a familiar sound to the residents of the respective districts. Only a few days ago a young man was leaning on a fence talking to a neighbor, when a 22-caliber bullet struck the fence post against which he leaned. This portion of town is quite thickly settled, with little children playing about almost every house and reckless shooting in their vicinity, even with little guns is attended with very serious danger and can not be tolerated.

Hon. A. M. Crawford of Roseburg, is a lawyer of ability and integrity and has all the qualifications necessary to fill the office of attorney general. He first located in Oregon in Coos county, afterward moving to Roseburg, where he filled the office of register of the U. S. land office under President Harrison. Since from office he has turned his attention to the practice of his profession and has built up a lucrative practice by his energy and ability. Mr. Crawford is well fitted to conduct the office to which he will be elected in June.—Medford Mail.

The reputation of J. O. Booth for integrity is not so flimsy a character as to be affected by the insinuations, not assertions, which his political enemies are endeavoring to spread. They are resorting to unclean methods, which show to what lengths they are driven in order to find material to oppose him. Here is one of the brilliant reasons advanced by his enemies and actually advocated as a reason why he should not be elected: Mr. Booth is known to be a benevolent man and generous with his own money. His enemies try to turn this in his disfavor and say that he will give away the county funds, a most senseless idea to advance and not by any means a vote maker, for the people are not blind nor are they dependent on political manipulators for their information. They have discernment and they know that the generous man, being considerate of the wants and rights of others beside himself, is the man who may safely be placed in positions of trust.

The vague insinuations in regard to the "present owner book," intended to be unfavorable to J. O. Booth, if traced to the foundation, will be found wanting. The present owner book was ordered by the republican county court of the time, Volney Colvig, judge, in order to bring under assessment property that was escaping taxation. J. O. Booth was one of the compilers. Instead of receiving a stated sum for their work, the compilers were to receive a certain per cent on all property brought under assessment which had before escaped taxation. The amount of this was greatly in advance of the expectations of all parties and made the cost of the book seem enormous. The Observer with an air of discovery, now reproduces a Courier editorial of Jerry Nunn's time, criticizing the book and its cost, calling it a steal and inquiry, "Who got the money?" This editorial, as the Observer man would know, was intended as a criticism of the county court's method of transacting business and also contained an insinuation against the integrity of Judge Volney Colvig, in view of which fact they are somewhat surprised to see the editor of the Observer take the article as a basis for argument. He cannot, however, quote from his own files in this matter, as it is a record he defended both judge and book.

The scurrilous article which appeared in the last issue of the Oregon Observer which asks if the present ownership book deal was a big graft and says that J. O. Booth got away with $4,500 which it terms "swag" is entirely worthy of the poor little tool of others who styles himself its publisher. It is amusing to note that years after the present ownership book for Josephine county has been settled for, and the book so well served the purpose for which it was intended in bringing to light thousands of dollars worth of taxable propery which had escaped taxation, the publisher of the Observer suddenly wakes up for a few minutes, hollers "graft" through the columns of his paper and slinks back into his peanut shop to deal out soda water and popcorn for which latter position he is so much better qualified. It may be interesting to those who noticed the article in question to know that at the time when the contract for the present ownership book was made with the county, the Observer was the first paper to endorse that contract. In unmistakable terms that paper commented favorably not only upon the contract but upon Mr. Booth and congratulated the taxpayers of Josephine county upon the prospect of soon having a book in the hands of the county assessors which would be the means of bringing all the taxable property under assessment.

At this late day it comes with poor grace for the Observer to make such scurrilous attacks and if by such methods the publisher of that paper hopes to defeat Mr. Booth for election as county judge the voters of Josephine county on election day will show that vendor of peanuts and popcorn the error of his judgment. If there is one fact well known to the voters and taxpayers it is that generous John Booth is not a grafter.

Galloway Congratulates Booth

The following letter has been received by J. O. Booth from Wm. Galloway of Oregon city. Mr. Galloway is receiver in the land office at Oregon City. He represented Yamhill county three times in the legislature and nominated for governor on the democratic ticket in 1894. He was judge of Yamhill county for four years.

OREGON CITY, April 29, 1902.
HON. J. O. BOOTH, Grants Pass, Ore.
My dear friend—Accept my heartfelt congratulations upon your nomination for county judge. Your nomination is doubly gratifying, not simply that you are capable, honest and absolutely incorruptible, but that we have been friends since early childhood when our fathers landed in Yamhill county fifty years ago.

During the past week we have opened up

Early associations and business relations may prevent but should I ever move from the Willamette valley I feel that I should wish to make my home in your prosperous county, for certainly it is today one of the most favored sections of the state. Josephine county is unequalled in its climatic conditions, with all the elements of wealth at hand in the unexhaustible forests of pine, fir and cedar, to say nothing of the agricultural, horticultural and mining interests, making it a most desirable home for prosperity and contentment.
Wishing you abundant success and a triumphant election in the interests of economy and good government, I am,
Sincerely your friend,
WM. GALLOWAY.

Merlin Notes.
Mr. M. C. Bond returned Saturday evening from Halsey, where he had been visiting for a few days.

Galice Creek Notes.

Chas. Sanders still has a hankering for the old place near Galice and will build again on the site of his burned mansion.

The Stratton Creek mine is indulging in a piece of good pay-ground for a change. This is all that is needed to make it the prettiest plant in Oregon.

The quartz mines of this district are certainly on the eve of a boom. Surely the prospects would justify the equipment of several good ledges with milling facilities.

On the Giddings & Patterson property Mr. Patterson has three men under his able supervision. With a large head of water available he is moving ground fast.

Harry Lewis' farm at the mouth of Taylor, looks fine as does James Cook's. These two energetic gentlemen are digging an irrigating ditch to insure their crops of enough moisture.

Two companies are operating on Taylor creek. John Conner, the dean of the creek, reports good clean-ups, an abundance of water, and predicts a vigorous rival for Galice in that long neglected stream.

Being on the apex of the mountain their mine is a remarkable one not only in its richness, but the uncommon location and formation. Their water right is a large spring feeding the north fork of Galice.

The placer miners along the creek expect a late run this season. There is some snow on the divide between Galice and Silver which will keep the water up to a good pipe for two months.

Mr. Terry and Carr at the mouth of Stratton creek, have made a beautiful little farm out of the old Chris Taylor place. They expect to have squash, pumpkins, watermelons and turnips as big as barrels.

Mr. Anderson, on the bar above the store is working in a very pretty bank of gravel. Being a very conservative gentleman, he keeps strictly within the bounds of truth and makes no elaborate assertions as to the cleanups.

Mammoth ledges of low grade ore are being exploited by local capital and energy alone; in fact, the assistance Galice creek has received from the outside is extremely limited and reflects no credit on the sources.

Old Brown and Bros., the top notchers, are piping away and regularly shaking their nuggets at those who do not produce equally as large ones, which by the way is seldom done as the boys have taken out some pieces of smooth, washed old channel gold that weigh several ounces.

Some of the most beautiful specimens of the world are embraced in the boundaries of Galice precinct. Quartz that would set investors wild if placed before them in the proper light, is allowed to lie dormant simply for the lack of means for preliminary development. Properties rich in free gold create no enthusiasm in this district, for they are many.

The Green & Harmon mine is one of the steadiest producers on the creek. They are working in a high bank now but as the gravel below is rich in coarse gold it pays very well to run the top stuff off. Mr. Green expects to have the "diggins" in model working order next season. His giants will be able to run two months yet.

Ed. F. Terry, superintendent for the St. Helens and Galice Mining Co., has a couple of men at work. As the boulders are large and lots of them where he is pipping, the company will put up a fine water power derrick for next season, and operate on a much larger scale by bringing onto the bar an extra ditch that will carry a large volume of water. Considerable work will be done this summer preparatory for next season's run.

Items From Greenback

Mrs. Red Miller returned from her visit in California.
W. T. Coburn was here on Friday looking after voters.
Mr. and Mrs. McKee have returned and taken up their abode with us again.
Miss Emma Hyde is visiting with her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hyde.

Bert Kayser cut his hand quite badly on the sheet iron plates in No. 9, used to shoot muck on.

Dick Vest received a 'phone message calling him to the deathbed of his mother at Chico, Calif.

This is the time of year when the men wear long faces and look hungry, as our folks are cleaning holes.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis are quite well again. We are rejoiced to say there is no sickness in camp at present.

We had a very pleasant social dance on Friday night. This is the place to come if you want to have a good time.

Mr. Harry Jones left Sunday for the Pass, where he will stay a short time and then go to Colorado, his former home.

We had a very hard thunder storm one day last week. The rain fell in torrents for a little while, it reminded us of the "way back east" storms.

Mr. Lester Briggs and his sister Uldy and Nellie Anderson went to Medford to attend the Heaton-Sackett wedding, returning on Monday, Roy Jodd bringing them out.

The cards are out announcing the wedding of Miss Carrie Sackett, our school teacher, of Medford, Oregon, to Mr. Harry Heaton, of this place, to take place on Sunday, May 11.

Hugo Items.
We are having balmy weather, with a few sprinkles to intervene.
The extra section gang are putting a No. 1 ditch on the railroad. They are about one mile below this place.

W. M. Hedinger's sawmill has started up and is cutting 30,000 feet of lumber per day. A number of teams are hauling lumber to Hugo to be shipped to the Sugar Pine, Door & Lumber Company at Grants Pass.

Planting the gardens is now the order of the day. Grain looks well. Barley at the postmaster's place is five feet high. How is that for high, Bob?

An Able Orator Coming.

It is not often that the secretary of a national committee comes this way, and even if one does, he is seldom an orator. It happens that we are to have the privilege soon of listening to the secretary of the national prohibition committee, Mr. James A. Tate of Nashville, Tenn. He has long been identified with the prohibition reform. No doubt a large audience will be present at the Woodmen's hall on Thursday, May 22, at 8 p. m., to hear him. The Chastanooga Tenn. News had the following about one of Mr. Tate's addresses: "Well," remarked Stacey Lord, a leading druggist, to a News reporter this morning, "if you failed to hear Mr. Tate deliver his prohibition speech last night, one-half of your life is lost. It was one of the finest speeches I ever heard. For an hour and a quarter I enjoyed the eloquence of the inspired orator. I am not a third party man, but that speaking was a treat."

The Prohibition Male Quartette will be present and furnish several selections.

Destructive Eruption.

The most startling calamity in several years was occasioned by the eruption of Mount Pelee, a volcano on the island of Martinique, in which the city of St. Pierre was totally destroyed. The loss of life is near 40,000, and the desolation suffering and want resulting is terrible.

St. Pierre, the commercial center of the island Martinique, had a population of about 25,000. It was on the west coast of the island, about 12 miles north-west of Fort de France. It was the largest town in the French West Indies, and was divided into two quarters by a rivulet, over which a number of handsome bridges had been built. The lower quarter of the town was close and unhealthy, while for the most part the town was well ventilated and pleasant.

It had numerous public buildings and schools, a handsome theater and a botanical garden. Its roadway was defended by several forts. The Empress Josephine was born there in 1763.

The eruption of Mount Pelee began early last week and was followed by a fall of ashes over the northern part of the island, several inches covering the streets of St. Pierre. Saturday, the flow of lava commenced, and the entire population was thrown into consternation. It was rumored then that 500 inhabitants of St. Pierre were killed. This was the last word received from Martinique, as the submarine earthquakes interrupted cable communication, until the arrival of the Roddam at St. Thomas.

J. B. Paddock.
J. B. Paddock, who is one of the nominees for county judge of Josephine county, was born in Rossford county New York, in 1849. He is a graduate of Leavenworth institute in Central, New York, and from this school he entered Cornell university in the class of 1874. Owing to impaired health he left the university before graduating and through a combination of circumstances never returned. With his family he settled in Nebraska in 1879 and while there had a varied experience with prairie soil, blizzards, politics, marble working and newspaper editing. In 1888 he removed to Oregon and cast in his lot with the people of Josephine county where he has since resided. While Mr. Paddock has never been what would be termed a wealthy man, it has not been through any lack of ability on his part, but instead through a firm refusal to use the methods and schemes of modern business men. He has held many places of trust and in all of them has shown qualities that have won him the commendations of his fellow citizens. Utterly fearless in the performance of his duty as an officer and considering that it will be his duty to work honestly for the people of the entire county he will if chosen as judge fill every requirement of that responsible position.

"The Major's Daughter."

The opening bill for Weidemann's Big Show is the four-act farce comedy "The Major's Daughter," a play written by Dr. Sayers. It is a continuous laugh from the rise to the fall of the curtain. Between acts high-class vaudeville is given, filling up the long waits and making a continuous performance. Prominent among the specialties is Nellie Weidemann, the electric dancer, presenting an electrical light sensation; Petite Zella Marie, the child artist; Lyndon & Glenn, the Australian-American travesty stars; and Lawrence & Adeline, the society sketch artists. Ladies will be admitted free on Monday night, commencing on Monday evening, May 19th. The prices are 10, 20 and 30 cents. The sale of seats opens at First-Flour Store on Friday morning.

Weidemann's Show at Ganiard's.

The Weidemann's attractions running at Ganiard's Opera house this week are proving popular with this public, and full houses have been enjoyed by the company from the start. Light comedy is the leading feature, a new play being given each night, with vaudeville specialties between acts, making a nearly continuous entertainment from the time the curtain rises.

The specialties are among the most entertaining features of the show. The cast of characters are generally well supported. Miss Nellie Weidemann, in the dances with colored light effects is a novel attraction to most of our people. The optical illusions made are startling and beautiful.

So far, the entertainments have been clean and free from any and every element of obscenity and the show is receiving the patronage of Ashland's best citizens.—Town Talk.

Prohibition State Platform.
"We, the representatives of the prohibition party of Oregon, in convention assembled, believing the liquor traffic to be morally, politically and financially the greatest evil resting upon our country, and realizing the absolute responsibility of restoring the removal of this crime-breeding, poverty-creating and soul-destroying business, except through a political party created for and pledged to this end; therefore,

"Resolved, That with three or more other relatives regarding which we hold firm convictions, we believe it to be the part of wisdom to concentrate our efforts upon the one issue which every citizen weighs in importance all other issues combined—the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes."

"Resolved, That in the accomplishment of the one clearly defined purpose, we invite to fellowship all those who on the one hand will recognize in the full belief that the party here created will be endowed with the requisites of wisdom, patriotism, courage and ability to take on and especially to do all social, financial, economic, industrial and territorial questions that may present themselves."

A large crowd gathered at the court house Tuesday evening to hear of resolution as presented by Mr. H. R. Ryan, of Salem, socialist nominee for governor, and J. Still Wilson, a noted socialist lecturer. Mr. Ryan noted the opening speech, dwelling upon the state affairs and how socialism would affect this state. Mr. Ryan is at present in the real estate business in Salem but until recently was a farmer. Mr. J. Still Wilson made the principal speech of the evening.

He said that he usually spent several nights in each place by lecturing on socialism through the country; that the necessities of the campaign in Oregon were such that at this place he should have to do the best possible in one evening. He first stated, according to his views, the most conditions under the present competitive system. Competition of wealth and extension of comparative poverty are the two most striking features of the situation. The fundamental cause of this is the system of the resources and producing agents open to the countless private ownership of any person who can play the game. The capitalists are not in blame. They are simply the best players. Under the competitive system it is the property that is protected, instead of the man.

If 60,000 people are out of employment and in danger of starving there is no authority under the constitution for the government to protect them but, if 60,000 are in danger of being taken, the entire forces of the United States is at hand to protect it.
